Our Reynolds Defense Firm Lawyers

I LOVE Lawyers!

"I love lawyers" he shouted as he and his wife ran out the doors and down the courthouse steps.

At Reynolds Defense Firm, we specialize in one thing – we represent good people who face DUI charges. This is a true story; that person was our client. And everyone wanted to know what we'd done to improve the reputation of the legal system so dramatically.

The answer? We worked with the prosecutor to find a solution that allowed our client to earn a dismissal on his case. This saved his driver's license, which saved his job, which allowed him to continue to be a productive member of society. Reynolds Defense Firm did for him what we do for every single client we work with – we busted our hump, and we did the absolute best we could. Does this outcome happen every time? No, this was a unique situation; every case and outcome is different. But, there's a reason that this client, and hundreds of others, have such wonderful things to say about working with Reynolds Defense Firm.

I hope you never need to call us, but if you or someone you believe in has been arrested for a DUI, we'll take care of you.

Reynolds Defense Firm – we're solid, we're here if you need us, and we are very good at what we do.

Is there a "Broken Windows Theory" to enjoying life?

During the time I served as a deputy district attorney, I spent two years with my office located in a local police precinct. In addition to training and working with police officers, I was charged with helping the police bureau attack and deter lower-level crimes under the "broken windows theory" of law enforcement. As that theory goes, when low-level crimes are allowed to flourish – crimes like graffiti, street-level drug dealing, or prostitution – life with those law violations becomes the new normal for folks living there. That sense of "lawlessness" leads to more serious crimes occurring which, in turn, becomes the new normal for life in that area, and the spiral grows.

Focusing on the little things can curb crime and keep our neighborhoods safer, and I think focusing on the little things in life can lead to equally dramatic and positive results in how we enjoy every day. I know that if I lose track of the little things, things like eating well, exercising, getting enough sleep, and being grateful for all that I have, negativity can start invading my thought processes. Pretty quickly, I find that instead of enjoying life, all I can see is what isn't good, my stress levels rise ever higher, and the spiral grows.

And, it keeps growing until I remember (or am reminded – thank you Tammy!) to go back to the little things. When I get back to doing those seemingly insignificant, little things right, the rest falls into place with remarkable ease...

Rachael Leone—Director of First Impressions

We are delighted to introduce Rachael Leone, our outstanding Director of First Impressions. Rachael's energy, people skills, and her genuine desire to help others shines through every time someone calls us or visits our office. We always say that the caliber of person we want in this position is someone who will go on to do great things, and Rachael is no exception – she has her eye on going to law school in the next few years.

Rachael recently returned to the US from an extended trip through the South Pacific, and she enjoys going on adventures with family and friends and spending time outside hiking, camping, fishing, and tree climbing. She is also a talented artist, doing commissioned watercolor paintings in her spare time.

The RDF (clean) Little Limerick Competition

RDF's continued growth and success is due in large part to the fantastic team of people we have working together here, and we are always looking for things to pull us together as a group. For example, this month we celebrated National Limerick Day (who knew there was such a day?) by holding the inaugural RDF (clean) Little Limerick Competition. The rules were simple – create an original, PG-rated, RDF-themed limerick, and the winners, chosen by popular vote, get a coffee shop gift card.

Man, we have some creative people here - we had 16 entries, and they were good! Congratulations to Lacy for taking first place and to Nic for his second place finish. Here's just one example of what we came up with:

I once was arrested for driving,
a car after too much imbibing.
I was scared half to death,
'til I hired RDF.
A DUI firm and more, they're inspiring!

What's new with me and my own

5K Great Inflatable Race

Well, it turns out that both Jack and I are getting older. I knew this in the abstract and was gently reminded of this a few weeks ago when the Reynolds family ran in the 5K Great Inflatable Race. For Jack, getting older means he has more stamina and can run farther and faster than last year. For me... let's just say I did not seem to experience those same improvements! All kidding aside, we had a great time with this race – some of those slides were a good 20' tall, and racing up or through those big obstacles added a lot of fun to the event.

Part of Jack's improved running prowess is because he started doing track as his spring sport this year and is loving it. He told me he plans on being America's next "de-athlete" – it took a minute before I realized he meant America's next decathlete, as in the athlete who competes in the ten track and field events in the decathlon!
